

SSRMP Continuous Education Day 2019

25.10.2019

Welcome

On this year's continuous education day, we address current implementations and challenges of training and education in radiation protection - with a special focus on medical physics. Attendees will not only learn about the background of the changes associated to revised radiation protection ordinance but will also learn about already established teaching courses at different institutes and organizations and about future projects. Moreover, experts talk about subjects like copyright issues in regard to teaching or about the difficulties and promises of e-learning solutions. In essence, attendees will get an update about the current state of training and education of radiation protection related issues in Switzerland.
